The Accidental Expat

“My Jewish life is focused on being a warrior in the fight against poverty... Life in Uganda demands that I exemplify the Jewish values of tzedakah and chesed which are always on my mind. The vast majority of street beggars live with multiple paralytic limbs, scooting torn rags across the hot, dirty pavement because they need wheelchairs... Each of these beggars was once a child or teen who needed someone to do something. Connected to this calling, my husband and I put our Jewish values to work in organizing volunteer days and creating vocational and rehabilitation projects for Tikvah Chadasha Foundation Uganda.”
